

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A monitor access is gradually applied and removed from a communications circuit, including a digital subscriber line (DSL), by a gradual monitor access (GMA) technique, in which a variable impedance element is gradually applied to the communications circuit
5 until the monitor can be introduced to the communications circuit without data disruption.